Call to All AFAS Artists

AFAS artists! We'd like to hear what you're doing! We'd like to tell everybody else too by including it into the newsletter.

It doesn't have to be about an AFAS event. We are happy to help promote your shows and sales. It doesn't have to be finished work — you can show us ideas you're playing with. You can bounce ideas off other AFAS artists and possibly collaborate.

It doesn't have to include pictures, although those are great! If your work is publicly accessible we might get pictures ourselves.

It doesn't have to be paintings or jewelry — we run a lot of that because we run what is submitted. We love all media. Musicians and performers, tell us where you're playing. Makers, show us what you're making. Teachers, tell us about your classes.

You don't have to use perfect English. We can word-craft while still maintaining your intended message.

Please utilize this newsletter so we can help you help expand your visibility. Submit to AFASWebMaster@theafasgroup.com.

Carolina's art is installed at a newly established organization, the Sid Lee Memorial Mental Health Association of Stokes County. Her exhibit will be up until the end of March. Part of the sales during this exhibit will be donated to the SLMMHA. Mental Health is a very important cause for her because everyone deserves an opportunity to thrive in their life. Some close friends and family have experienced mental health issues. Carolina supports this cause for them and others around her who might feel like they are alone at some point in their lives.

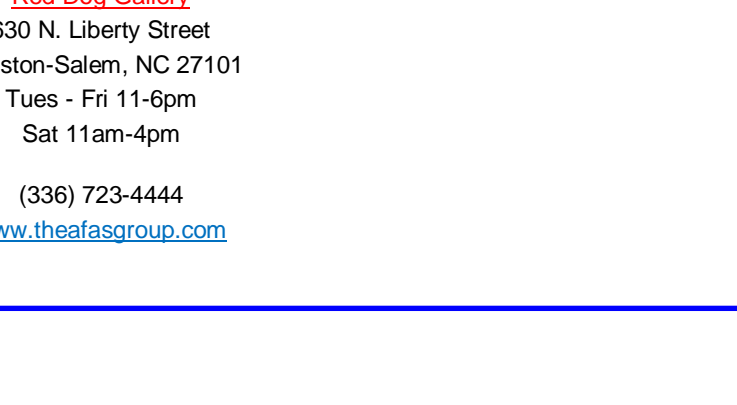

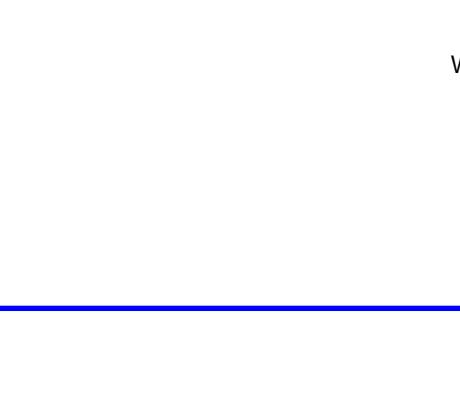

She also began her work on this wall and setting the foundation for the mural dedicated to Sid and Jeff Lee. This mural represents a constant battle experienced by individuals suffering from mental health issues. It also expresses that there is a road to recovery and a community for them in which to find support. She is accepting donations to help fund this mural project. If you or anyone you know is interested in donating, please message Carolina or donate to her PayPal (using send money to friends option) using her email is caro@coronafineart.com

Also, if you can share her Facebook (Corona Fine Art) post, it would mean a lot to Carolina.
